How it works

01

Teams

We split everyone into teams of five or six. Each team gets a partner team, who they will swap tasks with later.

02

Learning

In separate rooms, a trainer teaches each team to build something different, such as a catapult or a water pump.

03

The rush

Paired teams have 10 minutes to teach each other the tasks they have just learned from the trainer.

04

The swap

Each team then does their partner team's task, without any help. The trainers act as judges, and every mistake costs a point.

Round two

We mix the teams and run the exercise again with new tasks, followed by a final review.

Trainer-led reviews

Communication Rush has a review led by our trainers after each round. We agree the focus with you and build the reviews around it.
